Built in 1955, today Madisons third City Hall is the popular Main Street Cafe. It served the Chief of Police and his deputy, the Mayor, City Clerk, Water Department and the Volunteer Fire Department. It was opened as a cafe in December 2000 by Cindy and Tony Sensenberger. They created a unique and quaint restaurant experience with a menu meant to please a wide variety of customers. The former jail rooms as private dining rooms invite many new and regular customers to the historic building. John & Tammy Hall purchased the restaurant in 2018. In 2019 they expanded into dinner hours growing the restaurant and its part in the historic district of Madison.
